Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow

School Desegregation and Resegregation in Charlotte

Edited by Roslyn Arlin Mickelson, Stephen Samuel Smith, and Amy Hawn Nelson

Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow provides a compelling analysis of the forces that have shaped the growing resegregation of public schools. By assembling a wide range of contributors—historians, sociologists, economists, and education scholars—the editors provide a comprehensive view of a community’s experience with desegregation and economic development. Drawing on the experience of Charlotte, North Carolina—once a national model of school desegregation—the editors put education reform in political and economic context and show how yesterday’s decisions define today’s choices.

Roslyn Arlin Mickelson is a professor of sociology, public policy, and women’s and gender studies at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. Stephen Samuel Smith is a professor of political science at Winthrop University. Amy Hawn Nelson is the director of research for the UNC Charlotte Urban Institute and the director of the Institute for Social Capital, Inc.

“Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow paints a vivid portrait of the changing realities and daunting challenges facing school districts sixty years after Brown v. Board of Education. This careful analysis of the barriers to opportunity and limits on mobility point toward larger structural forces that must be confronted if we are to fulfill Brown’s promise of equality.”

—JOHN A. POWELL, DIRECTOR OF THE HAAS INSTITUTE FOR A FAIR AND INCLUSIVE SOCIETY,
AND THE ROBERT D. HAAS CHANCELLOR’S CHAIR IN EQUITY AND INCLUSION, UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, BERKELEY
